1   INTRODUCTION

The German Survey on Volunteering (FWS) is a representative survey on volunteer work, honorary office and civic engagement of the German population aged 14 and older. It is a substantial database for the description of volunteering and the volunteering potential, also among population groups and across regions. The survey is thus the basic instrument for social accounting on volunteering in Germany and is funded by the Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth (BMFSFJ).

Up to now, it was conducted in 1999, 2004 and 2009. The survey institute TNS Infratest Sozialforschung was responsible for the data collection and the production of the reports for the first three waves. The Institute for Social Work and Social Education (Institut für Sozialarbeit und Sozialpädagogik, ISS) coordinated the German Survey on Volunteering from June 2003 until December 2010. Since December 2011 the survey has been managed and scientifically supervised by the German Centre of Gerontology (DZA). Data collection for the next wave is planned for 2014.

In this discussion paper the key topics of the third wave of the German Survey on Volunteering 2009 (chapter 2) are presented. In chapters 3 and 4 you can find information on the sample and on the interview method. This document also contains contact information for data users (chapter 5) and a copy of the survey instrument including the instructions for the interviewers and filter information (chapter 6 and appendix).

Further information, for example, the main report of the German Survey on Volunteering 2009 (Hauptbericht des Freiwilligensurveys 2009 "Zivilgesellschaft, soziales Kapital und freiwilliges Engagement in Deutschland 1999-2004-2009" (BMFSFJ, 2010), in German only) are provided on the website of the German Survey on Volunteering:

2 SURVEY TOPICS

Data on the following topics were collected in the Survey on Volunteering 2009:
(1) information about the voluntary activities, (2) about the person and (3) and about the context of the voluntary activities.

Information about the voluntary activities includes questions about the volunteering in general as well as in 14 societal areas, which provide the basis for the calculation of the volunteering rates (Engagementquoten). Additionally, information about the importance of the voluntary activities, about characteristics of the first activity (B1) and, if applicable, about characteristics of a second activity (B2) was collected. Where a person carries out several activities, the most time-consuming was chosen as the first activity. It is recorded how many activities a person carries out, but data about the characteristics of a third, fourth or further activity were not collected. Furthermore, the respondents were asked about their interest in expanding their volunteering (volunteering persons) or their interest in starting to volunteer (non-volunteers at the time of the interview). This data serves as a basis for the calculation of the volunteering potential (Engagementpotenzial). Further, information on any earlier volunteering activity and other voluntary activities (in a wider sense) is available.

Information about the person comprises socio-demographic information such as age and gender as well as socio-economic information like employment status or education. Information about the migration background, values, religion and time expenditure was also collected.

Information about the context of the voluntary activities includes organisational and regional context information, for example the organisational framework of the voluntary activities and ideas to improve conditions for volunteering.

Table 1 shows the numbers of the questions which cover the topics and the contents of the Survey on Volunteering 2009.

3   SAMPLE

The sample of the German Survey on Volunteering 2009 is a representative landline sample of the resident population aged 14 years and older. The survey was conducted only in German in 2009, thus the survey is representative for the German-speaking resident population of the Federal Republic of Germany. In order to achieve a sufficient sample size for the 16 federal states that allow for separate analyses, the sample size was stratified disproportionately according to the population of the states.

repräsentativen Erhebung (Anhang). In BMFSFJ (Hrsg.), Hauptbericht des Freiwilligensurveys 2009. Zivilgesellschaft, soziales Kapital und freiwilliges Engagement in Deutschland 1999-2004-2009. (Anhang, p. 1-37). Berlin: Bundesministerium für Familie, Senioren, Frauen und Jugend. p. 30. Illustration modified.

The sample in the Survey on Volunteering 2009 contains n=20,005 interviews completed. At least 1,000 interviews were completed in each federal state; in the most heavily populated states the number of interviews was correspondingly higher (figure 1). The sample was funded by the Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth (in figure 1 in dark-grey colour), by foundations (Zukunftsfond der Generali AG and Bertelsmann Stiftung) and by the federal states Saarland[1] and Berlin (coloured in light grey).

[1] Information from particular questions which were added as requested by certain federal states has not been included in this documentation of the survey instrument and also not in the Scientific Use File.

Retrospective weighting has to be carried out for the calculation of the volunteering indicators at the federal level (the weighting factors provided by TNS Infratest Sozialforschung balance data retrospectively according to the federal state, municipality, gender and age groups). Cases from heavily populated states have been included in the analyses with relatively high weightings, cases from less populous states with relatively small weightings (figure 2).

4 INTERVIEW METHOD

Data of the German Survey on Volunteering was hitherto collected in three waves (1999, 2004 and 2009) as a telephone survey by TNS Infratest Sozialforschung on behalf of the Federal Ministry for Family Affairs, Senior Citizens, Women and Youth (BMFSFJ).

The interviews of the Survey on Volunteering 2009, wave three, were conducted from the end of April until July 2009. They took 20 minutes on average.

The methodical report of the third wave of the Survey on Volunteering 2009 was published in the main report (Hauptbericht: BMFSFJ, 2010) and can be downloaded from the website of the Research Data Centre of the DZA: www.fdz-dza.de.

5 USE OF DATA

Anonymised microdata of the Survey on Volunteering 1999, 2004 and 2009 are available for secondary analyses. Scientists from universities and other research institutions as well as students working on their theses for an academic degree (e. g. Bachelor, Master, doctoral thesis) can receive access to data from the Research Data Centre of the DZA (FDZ-DZA) free of charge for scientific, non-profitable uses only.

Data of the Survey on Volunteering 2009 is available in the FDZ-DZA as Scientific Use File (SUF FWS 2009) since June 2013. Data of the waves 2004 and 1999 is being edited at the moment and will be published in the course of 2013 (www.fdz-dza.de).

You can contact us regarding data usage via e-mail: fdz@dza.de.

Additionally, data of the Survey on Volunteering can be accessed at the GESIS Data Archive for the Social Sciences (Datenarchiv für Sozialwissenschaften). If you are interested in using GESIS data, please contact the service of the Data Archive of the GESIS – Leibniz-Institute for the Social Sciences (Leibniz-Institut für Sozialwissenschaften) in Cologne (http://www.gesis.org/en/services/research/data-catalogue/).

The GESIS study numbers of the three waves of the Survey on Volunteering are:

Wave I: ZA-study number 3350 (Survey on Volunteering 1999)
Wave II: ZA-study number 4331 (Survey on Volunteering 2004)
Wave III: ZA-study number 5433 (Survey on Volunteering 2009)

The collection of data for the Fourth Wave of the German Survey on Volunteering is scheduled for 2014. Data of this wave is expected to be available for external users in 2016.

6   SURVEY INSTRUMENT

In the following the CATI-template for the telephone interviews of the third wave of the German Survey on Volunteering 2009 (FWS 2009) is documented. This is based on the programming template from TNS Infratest Sozialforschung and the GESIS-version ZA5433 (last update: March 2013).
